DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 04-18-2005 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 35-68 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Oberhardt ('133).

The reasons for this rejection are the same as set forth in the last Office action.

It is noted that new claims 35-68 are essentially the same as original claims 1-34, with the exception that the new claims now recite as an additional constraint on the "means for inducing a pressure differential," the function of "directing the unreacted portion of the sample past the test surface to a chamber for containing the unreacted portion."

This newly recited feature does not obviate the rejection based upon Oberhardt. The device of Oberhardt can be interpreted as including a chamber (76) which is positioned downward from the test surface and at the opposite end from the pressure supplying syringe. Therefore, the syringe of Oberhardt, which constitutes the presently recited means for inducing a pressure differential, would have been fully capable of transporting unreacted sample from the test strip to the chamber (76). To the extent that Oberhardt does not specify performing this particular step in using the device, applicant is reminded that the intended use of a claimed device does not impart a patentable feature where the structure of the device is otherwise known.

Response to Arguments

4. In response to applicant's argument that Oberhardt does not teach the function of directing the unreacted portion of the sample past the test surface to a chamber, it is noted that a recitation of the intended use of the claimed invention must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim. In a claim drawn to a process of making, the intended use must result in a manipulative difference as compared to the prior art. See In re Casey, 370 F.2d 576, 152 USPQ 235 (CCPA 1967) and In re Otto, 312 F.2d 937, 939, 136 USPQ 458, 459 (CCPA 1963).

In this case, the structure disclosed by Oberhardt would have been fully capable of performing the presently recited operations. Significantly, applicant's claim recites a means for inducing a pressure differential, and corresponding structure is disclosed by applicant as including a syringe. The Oberhardt device utilizes a syringe.

5. The prior art made of submitted in applicant's information disclosure statement, filed 04/18/2005, has been considered.

Conclusion

6. This is a continued examination of applicant's earlier Application No. 10/026,610. All claims are drawn to the same invention claimed in the earlier application and could have been finally rejected on the grounds and art of record in the next Office action if they had been entered in the earlier application. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL even though it is a first action in this case. See MPEP § 706.07(b). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no, however, event will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
